considerable scope of the city, lying on the western verge of the mess on which the new town is largely built. But the part complained of lies along Main street. At present this street is the main artery through which commerce flows from one side of the city to the other. The fact that such rookeries have been permitted on such a street, has long been a disgrace to Las Vegas. Around it in all directions lie many of the most desirable private residences, yet the people living in these residences have been compelled at all hours of the day to have scenes and acts of profligacy flaunted in their faces. At night the eye is shielded ffrom witnessing these things, but the ear more than compensates by what it is made to hear; scarcely a carousal startles the people from their slumbers but it may be traced to or from this practicular quarter. considerable scope of the city, lying on compensates by what it is made to be scarcely a carousal startles the people from their slumbers but it may be traced to or from this praticular quarter. The reputable people will stand it no longer. Yesterday a raid was made upon the houses, and the fallen women is were brought before Justice Ulibarri. They were told that they would be prosecuted to the full extent of the law so long as remaining in that neighborhood, and they promised to vacate before night. But what will be the good of their going if the houses are rented again to the same class of people in a week or two? Here lies a large part of the evil. Those who own or have the management of this property should refuse to rent it to such characters. If they do so rent it, they should be prosecuted for committing a nuisance upon the community; and if there is no law under which the owners and managers can be held responsible, than let it be seen that our next legislature makes such a law. What to do with the "social cyil" is a problem the most civilized nations have not solved. But whether it is a licensed traffic, as in France, or one merely winked at, as in the United States, no where is it permitted to plant itself upon the most frequented throughfares and brazenly throst itself into the faces of respectable families. If nothing else can be done, let that property on Main street be condemned by the process of law, and be pulled down; and if the Cyprians are a necessary evil, let them hie themselves to some of the out-of-the-way places in our city, where they will no longer be a standing menace to the purity of our boys and girls.

Among those called before the court, Among those called before the courc, yesterday, one case stands upon grounds different from those in the cases of the unfortunate women already referred to. It is the mistress of the white house. She owns her own property and cannot be required to vacate it; yet she is charged with living there within a stone's throw of the residences of many of our best citizens, in open and shameless profligacy with a man to whom she makes no pretence of ever having been married. This case has given trouble several times before, and the supposition now is that it will be pushed for all there is in it. The people are groused, and now that they have undertaken to clean out this Augean stable, the probabilities are the work will be done thoroughly, and to such an extent as not to require being done again soon.

Broom corn is a crop well adapted to New Mexico. It stands drought, requires but a short season, is easily handled, and can be manufactured at a slight expense for machinery upon the farm where it is raised. Almost any one can make brooms, by giving the subject a little attention. The crop is a heavy one to the scre, and this year readily sells in the states for $200 to $240 per ton, leaving the seed and fodder with the farmer as food for his stock.

The citizens, particularly of the east side, have made up a purse for presentation to Col. Pritchard. It is intended not so much as a fee for his legal sernot so much as a fee for his legal services in prosecuting the recent violators of law and order, as for a token of approval of the people for the stand he has taken in this matter as a cuizen. The people make a place, and all citizens are interested in the good name and orderly conduct of their town. It is every man's business to aid in enforcing the law, and in bringing evildoors to punishment. The time was when Las Vegas was like other wild western villages—the rough and law-less elements predominated. That time has passed. A majority of our people are quiet and law-sbiding, and they intend that others shall be also. There is no need of vigilant committees if the people are only united to see the laws executed.

The plaza park is public property.

laws executed.

The plaza park is public property, but this does not give any one the right to injure or deface it. It is for the public enjoyment and not for any private gratification. Then, too, there is the same redress for trespasses upon private rights. This much is suggested to those who are in the habit of passing through this park early in the morning or late in the evening, trampling on the grass and breaking the shrubbery. They are being watched, and some fine day they will find themselves severely punished. The plaza park is a thing of beauty and may be a joy forever. It can afford an amount of pleasure to our people which, taken in the aggregate, is beyond the possibility of computation. Why, then, any should be vandal enough to injure it in any manner, shape or form, can be accounted for in no other way but on the Darwinian theory of man's close kinship to the animals.
